To the Public.—The French Hercules, Messre. Hanry and Casimir, of the first talent, from the Royal Academy of France, having given several representations at the theatres of this city with the most brilliant success, are now engaged at Castle Garden for a few nights only. Their teats are really mercelible and the Garden is crowd-five every evening to admire and applaud the uncommon trength, agility, and finished clegance of these two Atlets is a rare chance for the lovers of gymnastics, its impossible to imagine their unequalled dexterity, far unperfor to any other artists who have visited this country. One of the brothers, Mr. Casimir, the first drummer a France, plays on twelve at one time, with incredible relocity. On a single drum be imitates the firing of the samon and guns of a regiment on the battle field; and in seating the retreat, produces more effect than others resuld on five.

MORE OF THE RIOTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Half past II A.M., Monday.

The city is under martial law. The Governor and the troops between here and Harrisburgh are expected in the city this afternoon. The first detachment of troops from the country have just rode down Chesnut street.

A man has just been taken past us to the State House, whose face is mangled and bloody; he has just shot two soldiers with a double barrelled gun. Every few minutes there are arrests made of persons who are using violent language against Gen. Cadwallader and Capt. Hill.

persons who are using violent language against Gen. Cadwallader and Capt. Hill.

I have been round this morning, an counted 11 killed and 17 wounded; yet I doub not there is double that number.

Capt. Scott, of the Cadwallader Col.
Pleasantson is not dangerously word.

There are not more than five of the military and the fact are not more than five of the military and the fact and a most interesting family—wife and several lovely daughters—only five minutes before he was and a most interesting family—wife and several lovely daughters—only five minutes before he was shot. The distress of his family this morning exceeds any thing I ever saw.

The sight of the dead and wounded bodies as they lay in the Commissioners Hall is truly awin!

General Cadwallader is blamed severely on almost every hand, tew sustain him.

There has been no further fighting this merning; but the Native Americans have possession of three field pieces yet; and about 1200 men have mustered in Kensington and are marching down the Jersey shore to cross at the lower ferry.

Quarter to Twelve—The Natives have just made a demand on General Cadwallader that he shall withdraw the military and they guarantee the safety of the Catholic Churches and the peace of of the city. I will write again at 5. Palors.

[Correspondence of the Herald;

PHILADELPHIA, July 8, 1844.

The morning spapers will give you as full accounts of the state of our city up to 2 o'clock in the morning, as I can write. A short time after day break the mob began to gather, and the whole district of Southwark was in a tumult of exasperation. A man was found dead by his window, in Queen street, near Front, this morning, he having been struck in the head by a shot from the military been struck in the head by a shot from the military while looking out of his windows. Three of the members of the Germantown Blues have been killed, besides a great number of people wounded. The shot swhich rattled up 3rd street, last night, was fired by the rioters.

A large meeting was held this morning, to request Gen. Patterson to withdraw the troops, and this afterneon an arrangement was made to put the district in charge of the Board of Commissioners and the Court of Quarter Sessions, and accordingly the troops have been relieved. They were jaded and worn out. Up to this hour the people were quiet, and hopes are entertained that no more outbreaks will occur. There is no means of ascertaining the number of killed. There was a frumor that Col. Pleasanton and Capt. R. K. Scott were dead, but it is unfounded. The military are to hold themselves in readness.

Three thousand troops will be under arms in an hour. Fifteen hundred have arrived from the country within the last hour.

The probabilities are there will be a battle tonight, should an outbreak occur.

day afternoon.

Private Waterman, struck through the knapeack, wounded in the upper part of the neck. Lieutenant Bockus—shot through the cap. All these are of the Germantown Blues.

Captain Mallory of the Washington Artillery—pompoon shot off.
